

Procurement/ Policy Project Support

The security environment is constantly changing. Canada's defence and security industries can play a vital role. Canadian proposals need support to muster urgency with ministers and civil servants. That's where DefenceReport comes in.

Ministers and civil servants are bombarded with prospective procurement and initiative pitches. What often is lost is context.

We have been there – writing policy papers, lobbyist meetings, speaking to government officials and the press. DefenceReport has been sought out by industry and interest groups to help them with their pitches to demonstrate that their product or project has an indispensable and inescapable place in Canadian defence and national security.

We provide context as to why a project or a product is important with customized, succinct reports that should be part of your project pitch. With our expertise, we offer another weapon in your project's arsenal.
